Book Launch, 'If I Could Eat the Stars'

Creativity and English Research Cluster

Wednesday 10 June, 10:00am, Gallery 501

The Launch will be followed by refreshments

The Curtin School of Education, Sally Murphy and the Creativity and English Research Cluster invite you to Gallery 501 to celebrate all things poetry. Join us as we launch If I Could Eat the Stars and Other Poems, edited by Rebecca Newman and Sally Murphy, and illustrated by Briony Stewart, with poems from more than 50 West Australian poets.

Afterwards browse the exhibition of poems from the book, along with reminders of the ways poetry makes a difference to young people and the world.

Dr Sally Murphy OAM is a poet, author, and Senior Lecturer in the School of Education. With over 50 books for children and educators, her knowledge of poetry for children is exceptional, and she looks forward to inspiring you to love poetry (almost) as much as she does.
