Explore contemporary issues in relationships and sexuality education and learn how to deliver inclusive lessons that promote respect and diversity.

Are you keen to learn about contemporary issues related to relationships and sexuality education (RSE), and to ensure your work aligns with evidence-based practice?

This essentials course is suitable for anyone who works in school or community settings. From the novice educator through to someone who might want a refresher.

We will provide you with contemporary and fundamental information related to RSE delivery, with a particular focus on the Australian context. The course focuses on the key evidence-based principles that underpin the delivery of RSE and will help you on your journey to deliver engaging and inclusive content.

You'll learn from supportive, highly trained professionals with decades of experience and expertise in education, sexology, and health promotion.

Who is this credential for?

This credential is particularly suitable for:

- Educators
- Pre-service teachers, In-service teachers
- Sexologists
- Health promotion professionals
- Health professionals

What you will learn

By completing this credential you will:

- reflect upon your own RSE journey and how this may impact your facilitation style and scope;
- outline and critically evaluate foundational, evidence-based principles related to RSE provision in school and community settings; and
- discuss aspects of RSE in a comfortable and non-judgemental manner

Key Topics

Your learning journey includes access to online modules that cover these key topics:

- understand contemporary issues related to RSE, particularly for an Australian context
- develop positive attitudes towards relationships and sexuality
- create and manage safe teaching spaces for the delivery of RSE

Assessment

To successfully complete this credential, you are required to pass a final assessment. In the final assessment, you will be asked to reflect upon your own RSE journey and consider how this may impact the RSE you deliver within various settings. You will also be required to outline and justify a range of contemporary, evidence-based principles related to RSE provision applicable to school and community settings.

Earn a badge

Once you successfully complete and pass the final assessment, you'll earn a digital badge that is instantly shareable to your social networks (including LinkedIn) which showcases your new skills and knowledge mastery.
